SHOTS I HATE TO HANDLE.

By Sam Hardy, the International and Notts Forest Goalkeeper.

I suppose I must have spent well over one thousand hours "between the sticks" during my football career.

Remembering that a slip is always possible, and that a goal "given away" through a custodian allowing a simple effort to pass him counts just as surely as does an unstoppable "pile driver" sent in from a range of five yards, I might be excused for saying that I hate dealing with any kind of shot, and that I much prefer watching my own side bombard the fellow who is skipping about at the other end in his efforts to anticipate the direction from which the leather is coming to him.

Players Who Puzzle Me.

A goalkeeper, however, must be prepared to do his fair share of work, and there is an immense amount of personal satisfaction to be gained when you manage to foil the unkindly intentions of an opposing forward.

When you are in form the job of goalkeeping makes you think that this is not such a bad old world after all. But when forwards manage to pull out that extra bit against you, and you feel a certain loss of self-confidence in dealing with difficult shots, you begin to wish that the ground would open and swallow you up.

The forward of whom I am suspicious, and the one I am always careful to watch closely, is the player who has mastered the art when I have an indication where it is being aimed, but the player who can control a ball properly right up to the moment of making his final effort gives the goalkeeper a very anxious time, because there is little chance of anticipating exactly when and where he is going to shoot.

When the day is windy, high, slow, dropping shots are difficult to deal with, for there is always the possibility that the ball may swerve at the last moment, and then you have to hustle to prevent a score being registered against you.

The goalkeeper who hopes to succeed must make a point of learning to work in a cramped space, for there are times when he will be badly crowded by friends and foes alike. Then, if he has the ball, a quick and agile twist will be necessary if he is not to be bundled into the net with the leather.

Kicking should be practised with the utmost care. Backs have plenty of work to do without taking goal kicks, and I think that it is up to the man between the posts to take on this particular job. Always try to send the ball far enough forward for your own attackers to gather it while on the run.

When you have a fast ground shot to deal with, do not be afraid of getting well down to it. And when you are in difficulties, do not be afraid of giving away a corner—for it is only about one corner kick in a dozen that produces a goal.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—

In the last two issues of the "Soccer News," the Scribe of the St. George Association has stated that West Sydney was the only team to take points away from St. George Club last season. Well, that is so, but it is as well to remember that the above club defeated them in the Gardiner Cup by 2 points to nil.

As is already known, Mr. Adam, the manager of the Canadians, has issued a challenge to the New South Wales team which defeated them so decisively 5—2 in the third match of the tour; no other combination has been successful in scoring a like number of goals against the visitors, and, as it was fully expected on all sides that the Canadians would be the victors, it was no doubt a big jolt to them, as well as a surprise to everyone. The only other defeat inflicted upon them was in the first Test match by a team comprising representatives from both Queensland and New South Wales, all other games have been either Canadian victories or draws. Apparently Mr. Adam and his stalwarts are not contented to permit a 5—2 result to go unchallenged, they are eager to prove that it is not a true reflex of their prowess; this shows a very pleasing keenness which in touring teams sometimes wanes a little when the first few games have been fought out, the itinerary being carried out with less zest than at the beginning of the tour.

The New South Wales side is equally willing to pit itself once more against the Canadians, and, providing that a match can be staged without undue interference with existing arrangements and fixtures, it should be one of the most interesting of the tour.

"NEW MADE CORNER KICKS."

The Open Road is the only way to create Goals.

If you want a crazy patchwork; if you want a stitch two, drop two, purl three scheme; if you want an uncommon jerk to bring you to realise how easily football can be amended, commend me to a woman! A lady has asked me why clubs will persist in allowing their players to go through the same formula in connection with corner kicks. She says that of all the hopeless waste of energy and time, nothing quite comes up to the corner kick, for the simple reason it is ancient and modern, and is proved a foolish method, and yet no corner kick taker ever dreams of altering his style, or principle. It is certainly strange that players and spectators roar their approval when their side gets a corner kick, but really it is much cry about nothing, but not one in thirty leads to a goal, and perhaps in the near future we may find the lady's scheme having some semblance of a show.

This is it: She says as the defence outnumber the attack, and there is such a crush in the centre of the goal, it is always good odds against the ball finding its way through. Her remedy is that the corner kick taker should have a prearranged plan with an inside partner; that the corner kick, instead of being centred to goal, should be pulled out about ten or twelve yards to a companion, who shall be on the penalty line edge. When the man on this edge is tackled, or even before he is to push the ball still further down the field, a couple of yards or so, and the man who took the corner has then come sweeping round and has a shot at goal. By this means the defence would have opened out, the taker of the corner kick will always have a better must be conceded, that many corner kick takers are exceptionally clever in putting the ball in an awkward position for the defence. Nevertheless a corner kick is always a lottery, even when the ball has the necessary pull on it, and I feel that the time must come when we should take fresh stock of how to manipulate a corner kick, therefore I am inclined to give special prominence to my lady friend's uncommon, and, until now, unheard of idea of converting corners.

CRITICISM OF THE PRESENT SYSTEM.

To the Editor.

Sir,—

The continued success of the promoted teams, Auburn and Two Blues, prompts the question—Why the necessity for these teams in the First Grade at all, especially the latter. I have been waiting patiently for the Association to remedy the numerous anomalies in the composition of First Grade football as it exists to-day. The teams comprising First Grade Soccer at the present time, three Pyrmont district teams, including West Sydney, three Granville district, three Balmain district, Sydney, Gladesville, St. George, Leichhardt, Lachlan Rangers (district uncertain), and Canterbury, making a total of seven districts represented by sixteen teams, and constituting no less than nine unnecessary teams; this by the way, notwithstanding that such centres as North Sydney, South Sydney, Eastern Suburbs, Annandale, Glebe, Manly, and Newtown are without representation. The people of Granville, Balmain, etc., have little to complain of, but we who live in the places latterly quoted are discontented, and we might add, football starved. Most

I might mention, abolish the relegation of teams to Second Grade; this, in my opinion, is the solution of the whole trouble, without, in any way, diverting from the club system.

If the Association will not move why not some of the teams, by amalgamation, do so for the good of the game? It is to be sincerely hoped that action is taken by either side before the next season comes round. Interstate and internationally, the game is advancing wonderfully, but in the metropolis we are at a standstill, comparatively speaking. In my opinion things badly require tightening up, and the competition put on a thoroughly representative district basis; do this and the future of the game is O.K.

A RE-PLAY.

A re-play will take place between Balmain Gladstones and Gladesville. The latter won, it will be remembered, 4 goals to 3, but as the referee reported playing 5 minutes short owing to bad light the M.C. had no alternative but to order a re-play.

TO THE WEST SYDNEY CLUB.

The Gladesville Club desires to express their thanks for the loan of players' outfits on the occasion of their match with Balmain Gladstone, at Leichhardt, on Saturday, June 9th, when their own outfit had inadvertently gone astray.

WEST SYDNEY S.F. CLUB.

An enjoyable evening was spent at the benefit in aid of Clem Hill, arranged by the West Sydney F.C. on June the 10th. Will all Club Secretaries who had tickets for some kindly settle with me at their earliest convenience.

Snowy Baker's Unfailing Liniment

A Boon to Soccer Players

A bottle should be in every player's kit; it is invaluable for easing pain, reducing inflaming and stiffness of the muscles and joints. Use it both when training and after every game. Apply the liniment immediately after the shower, and rub it in all over the body, and it will greatly minimise the inconvenience and pains that are almost certain to arise from exertion.

SNOWY BAKER'S LINIMENT is used by leading Scullers, Footballers, Cricketers, and Athletic Clubs.

RIGHTING THE RULES.

One or Two Points in which the Laws of Football might be Amended with Advantage.

(By "Andy" Wilson, Chelsea's Famous Scottish International).

There is nothing rash in the composition of the rule-makers of football. They walk warily, and make no alteration until they are convinced that the best interests of the game will be served thereby.

But, though it may be a mistake to make repeated changes in the rules of play, that does not necessarily mean that we have reached the stage when we can sit back and say that everything is perfect. There are, indeed, certain directions in which careful thought over the existing regulations might prove worth while.

The authorities recently issued a warning to players which served to raise in my mind an im-

The man who is allowed to use his hands can't possibly get to the ball. However, as it happens, a full-back is on the spot, and,
as the only method of preventing a goal, he uses his hands. Such an act would involve his side in a penalty kick, of course.

But penalty kicks don't always produce goals. Indeed, it is said that, on the average, about one penalty kick in three fails to end in a goal. If this is true, then it must also be true that, in instances like the one I have detailed,
the "sentence" does not fit the "crime." Of course, those who preach a policy of perfection say that a sportsman should never prevent his opponent's scoring a goal
by an illegal act. We all agree.
But in the heat and excitement of a vital League match or a thrilling Cup-tie there is a strong temptation for a man to take a desperate course and then think about it afterwards.

Would it not be more to the

RIGHTING THE RULES.

One or Two Points in which the Laws of Football might be Amended with Advantage.

(By "Andy" Wilson, Chelsea's Famous Scottish International).

There is nothing rash in the composition of the rule-makers of football. They walk warily, and make no alteration until they are convinced that the best interests of the game will be served thereby.

But, though it may be a mistake to make repeated changes in the rules of play, that does not necessarily mean that we have reached the stage when we can sit back and say that everything is perfect. There are, indeed, certain directions in which careful thought over the existing regulations might prove worth while.

The authorities recently issued a warning to players which served to raise in my mind an important and interesting point. They reminded players on the defence that they were not expected to break the rules of the game in order to prevent a goal being scored against them.

For instance, somebody sends in a fine shot, which is well out of the reach of the goalkeeper. The man who is allowed to use his hands can't possibly get to the ball. However, as it happens, a full-back is on the spot, and, as the only method of preventing a goal, he uses his hands. Such an act would involve his side in a penalty kick, of course.

But penalty kicks don't always produce goals. Indeed, it is said that, on the average, about one penalty kick in three fails to end in a goal. If this is true, then it must also be true that, in instances like the one I have detailed, the "sentence" does not fit the "crime." Of course, those who preach a policy of perfection say that a sportsman should never prevent his opponent's scoring a goal by an illegal act. We all agree. But in the heat and excitement of a vital League match or a thrilling Cup-tie there is a strong temptation for a man to take a desperate course and then think about it afterwards.

Would it not be more to the point, and a way of ensuring justice, if, in cases like that mentioned, the referee had the power to award a goal instead of a penalty kick?

"Free Kick" Reform.

Leave to use such power would only be given to the referee in cases where he was convinced, beyond shadow of doubt, that a goal would have been scored but for a breach of the rules. I realise that such a change in the rules would be somewhat revolutionary, but surely it would be a step in the right direction?

Also with regard to the scoring of goals, it has often struck me as peculiar that the rules do not permit of a goal being scored directly from a corner-kick without some second player touching the ball. The accomplishment of this feat—of scoring a goal from a corner-kick—is, in itself, so nearly impossible that, whenever I see it accomplished, I have a feeling that it should count as two goals, not one.

You place the ball on a spot in line with the goal-posts and then make the ball swerve sufficiently to get it between the posts. If you don't consider it difficult, try it. And when you are trying it, let me know, because I should like to be there to lay the odds against your doing it, even though there are no other people on the field.

No; on the face of it, a corner-kick so placed that the ball goes into the net seems to deserve a goal.

One point has just occurred to me, however. Perhaps the rule-

THE CHINESE TEAM.

Will the team visiting New Zealand include any of these?

This photo of the Chinese was taken on the occasion of the match at the Sydney Cricket Ground last year. A Chinese team will be welcomed in Sydney en route for New Zealand on July 9th. It is hoped to arrange a couple of matches in Australia towards the end of September.

makers have never permitted a corner-kick to score direct because they feel that a ball which even has a chance of doing this is from a badly-placed kick. Personally, I think it is a mistake for the taker of a corner to attempt to put the ball too near the goal. When he does this the odds are on the goalkeeper clearing, because he is the one person allowed to use his hands.

I believe there are one or two reforms in the rules on which there is now general agreement, and which we may see in effect before the start of another season. One is with regard to the position of the players when free-kicks near the penalty area are taken. A proposal was put forward last year that free-kicks within a certain distance of the penalty area should be taken under the same conditions as penalty kicks, except, of course, that the ball would be kicked from the spot where the offence was committed, and not from the penalty spot.

If this new rule came into force

all free kicks which had to be taken within, say, eight yards of the present penalty area. The justice of giving the kicker a sporting chance of scoring from these free kicks can be appreciated by any enthusiast who remembers the number of times he has seen a forward unfairly stopped when just outside the penalty area.

Colors that Confuse.

Under present conditions, such stoppages very seldom result in goals because the defending players line up in a body between the kicker and the goal, and it is extremely difficult to get the ball past them.

Another change which may be effected before next season is with regard to club colors. There is a movement on foot towards what might be called standardisation of colors, so that the club playing at home always has one color of shirt, and that playing away, a different color.

The idea is, of course, to prevent the clashing of colors which its usual colors. My readers who have played the game will realise that if for several months you have played with colleagues wearing blue shirts, and then in one match are asked to play against opponents wearing blue shirts, you will find it rather confusing. To standardise colors would do away with any possible advantage, but the idea runs up against years-old sentiment.
